

9-1-2017

Table of Contents/Masthead

Follow this and additional works at: <https://digitalcommons.ciis.edu/ijts-transpersonalstudies>

Part of the Philosophy Commons, Religion Commons, and the Transpersonal Psychology Commons

Recommended Citation

(2017). . International Journal of Transpersonal Studies, 36 (2). Retrieved from <https://digitalcommons.ciis.edu/ijts-transpersonalstudies/vol36/iss2/1>

This work is licensed under a Creative Commons Attribution-Noncommercial-No Derivative Works 4.0 License.

This Preliminary is brought to you for free and open access by the Journals and Newsletters at Digital Commons @ CIIS. It has been accepted for inclusion in International Journal of Transpersonal Studies by an authorized administrator of Digital Commons @ CIIS. For more information, please contact digitalcommons@ciis.edu.

The International Journal of Transpersonal Studies

Volume 36(2), 2017

Adversarial Collaboration: How Free and Open Debate Leads to Better Transpersonal Ideas
(Editor's Introduction)—*Marie I. Thouin-Savard

Bridging Transpersonal Ecosophical Concerns with the Hero's Journey and Superheroes Through Comicbook Lore: Implications for Personal and Cultural Transformation
Mark A. Schroll & Claire Polansky

SPECIAL TOPIC: Spiritual Emergency and Spiritual Emergence

Introduction to the Special Topic Section: Spiritual Emergency and Spiritual Emergence
Ted Esser

Spiritual Emergency: The Understanding and Treatment of Transpersonal Crises
Christina Grof & Stanislav Grof

Psychosis or Spiritual Emergency: The Potential of Developmental Psychopathology for Differential Diagnosis—*Kevin O. St. Arnaud & Damien C. Cormier

Self-Transformation Through the Experience and Resolution of Mental Health Crises
Guy Albert

SPECIAL TOPIC: The Taylor-Hartelius Debate on Psychology and Spirituality

Introduction to the Special Topic Section: The Taylor-Hartelius Debate on Psychology and Spirituality—*Brian Les Lancaster & Harris Friedman

The Return of Perennial Perspectives? Why Transpersonal Psychology
Should Remain Open to Essentialism—*Steve Taylor

Zombie Perennialism: An Intelligent Design for Psychology?
A Further Response to Taylor's Soft Perennialism—Glenn Hartelius

Keeping the Account Open: On Metaphysical Mistrust in Transpersonal Psychology (A Response to Hartelius)—*Steve Taylor

Circular Reasoning Is Not the Uroboros:
Rejecting Perennialism as a Psychological Theory—*Glenn Hartelius

Taylor's Soft Perennialism: Psychology or New Age Spiritual Vision?
Glenn Hartelius

Moving Beyond Materialism: Can Transpersonal Psychology Contribute to Cultural Transformation?—*Steve Taylor

Waiting to Die—Ken Ring

Table of Contents

Adversarial Collaboration: How Free and Open Debate Leads to Better Transpersonal Ideas (Editor's Introduction)—Marie I. Thouin-Savard	iii
Bridging Transpersonal Ecosophical Concerns with the Hero's Journey and Superheroes Through Comicbook Lore: Implications for Personal and Cultural Transformation Mark A. Schroll & Claire Polansky	1
SPECIAL TOPIC: Spiritual Emergency and Spiritual Emergence
Introduction to the Special Topic Section: Spiritual Emergency and Spiritual Emergence Ted Esser	28
Spiritual Emergency: The Understanding and Treatment of Transpersonal Crises Christina Grof & Stanislav Grof	30
Psychosis or Spiritual Emergency: The Potential of Developmental Psychopathology for Differential Diagnosis—Kevin O. St. Arnaud & Damien C. Cormier	44
Self-Transformation Through the Experience and Resolution of Mental Health Crises Guy Albert	60
SPECIAL TOPIC: The Taylor-Hartelius Debate on Psychology and Spirituality
Introduction to the Special Topic Section: The Taylor-Hartelius Debate on Psychology and Spirituality—Brian Les Lancaster & Harris Friedman	72
The Return of Perennial Perspectives? Why Transpersonal Psychology Should Remain Open to Essentialism—Steve Taylor	75
Zombie Perennialism: An Intelligent Design for Psychology? A Further Response to Taylor's Soft Perennialism—Glenn Hartelius	93
Keeping the Account Open: On Metaphysical Mistrust in Transpersonal Psychology (A Response to Hartelius)—Steve Taylor	111
Circular Reasoning Is Not the Uroboros: Rejecting Perennialism as a Psychological Theory—Glenn Hartelius	121
Taylor's Soft Perennialism: Psychology or New Age Spiritual Vision? Glenn Hartelius	136
Moving Beyond Materialism: Can Transpersonal Psychology Contribute to Cultural Transformation?—Steve Taylor	147
Waiting to Die—Ken Ring	160

The International Journal of Transpersonal Studies

Volume 36, Issue 2, 2017

Editors

Harris Friedman

Les Lancaster

Senior Research Editor

Douglas A. MacDonald

Research Editor

Adam Rock

Editors Emeriti

Don Diespecker

Philippe Gross

Sam Shapiro

Honorary Editor

Stanley Krippner

Guest Special Topic Editors

Brian Barnes

Ted Esser

Associate Editors

Courtenay Crouch

Marie I. Thouin-Savard

Assistant Editors

Sean Avila Saiter

Christine Brooks

Circulation Editor

Adrian Andreescu

Associate Managing Editors

Elizabeth Avetisian

Brian Barnes

Zachary Bertone

Heidi Fraser

Julian Michels

Sasha Strong

Rochelle Suri

Elizabeth Teklinski

Interns

Jeanne Catherine-Gray

Anna Watson

Publisher

Floraglates Foundation, Incorporated

1270 Tom Coker Road

LaBelle, FL 33935

© 2017 by Floraglates Foundation

All Rights Reserved

ISSN (Print) 1321-0122

ISSN (Electronic) 1942-3241

Board of Editors

Manuel Almendro (Spain)

Rosemarie Anderson (USA)

Liora Birnbaum (Israel)

Laura Boggio Gilot (Italy)

Jacek Brewczynski (USA)

Søren Brier (Denmark)

Elias Capriles (Venezuela)

Michael Daniels (UK)

John Davis (USA)

Wlodzislaw Duch (Poland)

James Fadiman (USA)

Jorge N. Ferrer (Spain/USA)

Joachim Galuska (Germany)

David Y. F. Ho (Hong Kong, China)

Daniel Holland (USA)

Chad Johnson (USA)

Bruno G. Just (Australia)

Sean Kelly (USA)

Jeffrey Kuentzel (USA)

S. K. Kiran Kumar (India)

Charles Laughlin (Canada/USA)

Olga Louchakova (USA)

Vladimir Maykov (Russia)

Axel A. Randrup (Denmark)

Vitor Rodriguez (Portugal)

Brent Dean Robbins (USA)

Mario Simões (Portugal)

Charles Tart (USA)

Rosanna Vitale (Canada)

John Welwood (USA)

Caifang Jeremy Zhu (China)

Adversarial Collaboration: How Free and Open Debate Leads to Better Transpersonal Ideas

Editor's Introduction

The willingness to publicly and articulately disagree is the lifeblood of academia, and perhaps even of human progress in general. When mediaeval Christian authorities insisted that the Earth was the flat and immovable center of the Universe, it took daring and perseverant investigators to demonstrate a different truth—at the cost of much censorship and a few heresy convictions (Drake, 2001). Similarly, when the founders of chiropractic medicine were ridiculed by traditional doctors, and even jailed for “the illegal practice of medicine” (Gibbons, 1994, p. 61), scientific evidence ultimately succeeded in bringing legitimacy to the field. More recently, when the wide majority of sexology researchers assumed that heterosexuality was the only normal or healthy sexual behavior in existence (e.g., Jackson & Scott, 2010), it was through public confrontation that courageous voices helped shift attitudes and destigmatize a wide variety of sexual expressions.

Scholarship, too, improves through a process of ongoing challenge to, and revision of, outdated assumptions. In recent decades, for example, critical social theories such as feminist, queer, and critical race theory (e.g., Agger, 2006; Calhoun, 1995) have not only transformed the academic arenas of humanities and social sciences, but have also helped sensitize a wider public to the existence of power dynamics behind the production of knowledge. It is not only the seminal work in these areas that has cultivated greater awareness of such issues among members of the public: it is also the ensuing pushback, discussions, and debates that further refined and disseminated these ideas in ways that have created ripples far beyond academic circles.

One of transpersonal psychology's goals from its inception has been to challenge and enlarge the descriptions of human experience that scientific psychology has provided. Yet there has been a notable lack of visible debate amongst its scholars (cf. Ferrer & Puente, 2013). Critical engagement with different perspectives within the scholarly community is essential for the transpersonal field to mature and develop, just as a healthy democratic process includes both a free press and fact-checkers. Transpersonal journals have a responsibility to provide platforms for such engagements, rather than censoring viewpoints unpopular to their editorial teams.

The recent publication in this journal of a paper by Steve Taylor (2016), along with a critical response by IJTS' main editor (Hartelius, 2016), has sparked further debate. In this issue, Hartelius has stepped down from the position of main editor to engage with Taylor in a series of papers that can be characterized as an adversarial collaboration on the topic of psychology and spirituality. This debate exposes two different perspectives on the role and location of transpersonal psychology within the larger scope of academia—focusing on whether perennialism and essentialism are acceptable approaches to psychological theories of spirituality. While both parties share a common commitment to expanding academia's understanding of psychology beyond the reductionist and materialist paradigm traditionally associated with Western science, each advocates a different strategy toward this goal. Taylor and Hartelius demonstrate the commendable qualities of vigorous debate conducted with a collegial attitude, exemplifying balance between intellectual integrity where no punches are pulled, and an uncompromising personal respect towards one's opponent.

This journal hopes to sponsor further critical conversations in future issues, including scholars wishing to participate in the dialogue initiated by Taylor & Hartelius. The field of transpersonal psychology can only benefit from open forums, active engagement, and constructive disagreements in its efforts to contribute to academia and to society at large.

In This Issue

The current issue opens with a paper by Mark Schroll and Claire Polansky entitled, "Bridging Transpersonal Ecosophical Concerns with the Hero's Journey and Superheroes Through Comicbook Lore: Implications for Personal and Cultural Transformation." This piece considers how mythical figures and comicbook superheroes can inspire personal growth, as well as social and planetary change. Schroll and Polansky begin with definitions of the terms myth, hero, and hero's journey, and their implications for understanding personal and transpersonal growth. They then illustrate their observations through portraits of individual characters from comicbook lore, examining their significance toward raising collective archetypal awareness of the psyche's relationship with Earth.

This paper is followed by a brief Special Topic Section on spiritual emergence and spiritual emergency, introduced by Ted Esser. In this section, we are pleased to republish a seminal 1986 paper on spiritual emergency by Christina and Stan Grof. This is one of the occasional exceptions to the IJTS policy of publishing only original papers, for the purpose of providing background to this important area of transpersonal research. While the Grof and Grof paper is in some ways more informal than what the journal typically publishes, the concept and context of spiritual emergency is offered in a clear and eloquent manner. After this comes the Taylor-Hartelius debate on psychology and spirituality, introduced by Les Lancaster and Harris Friedman, and managed by Brian Barnes. A short essay by Ken Ring, entitled, "Waiting to Die," completes the issue.

Marie I. Thouin-Savard, Associate Editor
California Institute of Integral Studies

References

- Agger, B. (2006). Critical social theories (2nd ed.). Herndon, VA: Paradigm.
- Calhoun, C. (1995). Critical social theory: Culture, history, and the challenge of difference. Cambridge, MA: Wiley-Blackwell.

- Drake, S. (2001). Galileo: A very short introduction. New York, NY: Oxford. <https://doi.org/10.1093/actrade/9780192854568.001.0001>
- Ferrer, J. N., & Puente, I. (2013). Participation and Spirit: An Interview with Jorge N. Ferrer. Journal of Transpersonal Research, 5(2), 97-111.
- Gibbons, R. W. (1994). "GO TO JAIL FOR CHIRO." Journal of Chiropractic Humanities(4), 61-71. https://doi.org/10.1016/S1556-3499\(13\)60030-360030-3)
- Hartelius, G. (2016). Taylor's soft perennialism: A primer of perennial flaws in transpersonal scholarship. International Journal of Transpersonal Studies, 35(2), 42-47. <https://doi.org/10.24972/ijts.2016.35.2.42>
- Jackson, S., & Scott, S. (2010). Theorizing sexuality. Berkshire, England: McGraw-Hill.
- Taylor, S. (2016). From philosophy to phenomenology: The argument for a "soft" perennialism. International Journal of Transpersonal Studies, 35(2), 17-41. <https://doi.org/10.24972/ijts.2016.35.2.17>

About the Author

Marie I. Thouin-Savard, MBA, is a PhD candidate in the East-West Psychology department at the California Institute of Integral Studies, and an Associate Editor at the International Journal of Transpersonal Studies. Her research interests include embodied sexuality, empathy, consensual nonmonogamy, and collective transformation.

About the Journal

The International Journal of Transpersonal Studies is a peer-reviewed academic journal in print since 1981. It is sponsored by the California Institute of Integral Studies, published by Floragades Foundation, and serves as the official publication of the International Transpersonal Association. The journal is available online at www.transpersonalstudies.org, and in print through www.lulu.com (search for IJTS).